HISTORIA

On the origin of this and other preparatory drawings for The Caprices, see the commentary on the first of them, corresponding to Caprice number 1 (Francisco de Goya y Lucientes, painter), and on the one corresponding to Caprice 3 (The bogeyman is Coming).

Line of provenance of this drawing: Javier Goya; Mariano Goya, 1854; Valentín Carderera, ca. 1861; Mariano Carderera, 1880; Prado Museum, 1886.

ANÁLISIS ARTÍSTICO

Preparatory drawing for Caprice 52. What a tailor can do! In this scene, Goya covers the trunk of a tree with clerical vestments, recreating a preacher in one of his most common postures, with his arms wide open. His head is covered with a hood and before him kneels a praying woman, behind whom a grimacing audience can be seen. Goya criticises and censures the tendency of the Church to fill its temples with images that incite superstition and the decadence of education, according to Matilla.

Not only the composition of the drawing and that of the print are identical, but also the distribution of light and shade. Thanks to the red wash, Goya was able to achieve the same effects as with aquatint.

It is stamped with the imprint left by the pressure of the press during the process of tracing the drawing onto the copper plate, 218 x 152 mm.
